QANplatform.com is a new-generation blockchain platform that serves as a basis for industrial-grade technologies and financial applications. Our main goal was to create a secure blockchain platform, which facilitates and simplifies business processes and is easy to use for everybody. While Bitcoin's first blockchain platform brought a paradigm shift in finance and technology labs in the year of 2009, Ethereum took a big step ahead with improvements and smart contracts in 2013. QANplatform is now fixing their flaws, fulfilling their mission to come out of the labs.

QANplatform.com was designed by Silur, a former contributing developer to some of the top blockchain platforms like Ethereum, Monero and Zcash.

Economic model of QARK token

QARK is a tradable utility token and its possession provides access to the services of the QANplatform.com. As technical development proceeds, new functions are continuously added to the platform, such as quantum resistance, high TPS (Transactions per Second), IoT (Internet of Things) compatibility, multi language feature, and energy-efficiency.

QANplatform.com can be used by:

Smart Contract Developers

Developers can now write their own smart contracts in their already known programming language with an SDK, rather than learning a new one. For this, developers have to buy QARK tokens which also increases the price of QARK token.

Validators and Full-Node Providers

For validation, validators have to place a stake - a fixed amount of QARK token - into the Deposit Pool. If the validation process is won, the validator receives a reward in QARK.

Smart Contract User (Transactor)

Interacting with certain applications in a fully trusted, uncensored way.
